ABOUT THE EVENT

Standard-essential patents (SEPs) have become the focal point of global technology litigation. While the Unified Patent Court is rapidly shaping European FRAND case law, Brazilian courts have emerged as an increasingly relevant forum for SEP enforcement and preliminary injunctions. The event brings together two leading judicial voices from both jurisdictions for a comparative discussion of the latest developments, followed by an open discussion with the audience. Topics will include, inter alia, injunctive relief and preliminary measures, interim licenses and the interplay between national and supranational fora in global FRAND disputes.

Attendance is free of charge, no registration required.

The event is open to all interested participants, in particular students, PhD candidates, law clerks, practitioners, and academics. A training certificate will be provided upon request. Please hand your business card to the organizers during the event to receive a certificate of attendance.
