

Alexander L. Gerbes, Professor Dr. med.

Faculty of Medicine, Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität (LMU) Munich, Germany
Lead international relations and strategic partnerships, International Board LMU Medicine

Alexander Gerbes is full professor (em.) of Internal Medicine and Gastroenterology
Fellow European Board of Gastroenterology, Fellow AGA, Fellow AASLD

- Associate Editor of GUT bmj since 2007 (Hepatology)
- Ambassador of the Faculty of Medicine for Global Alliance of Medical Excellence
- Representative of the Faculty of Medicine in LMU China Academic Network
- Visiting Clinical Professor (Hon) Chinese University of Hong Kong

For many years he served as

- Vice director and Acting Chief, Dept. of Medicine 2, LMU University Hospital
- Founder and Head of Liver Centre Munich (LCM)
- Member of the Research and of the Ethical Committee of the Faculty
- Principal Investigator EU Innovative Medicines Initiative, Translational Safety Biomarkers

His research interests are acute and chronic liver diseases.

Professor Gerbes has published over 300 articles in renowned journals such as Nature Medicine, Lancet, New England Journal of Medicine, Gastroenterology, Gut, Hepatology and Journal of Hepatology

Prof. Gerbes has an h-index (Google Scholars) of 84 and an i10-index of 248 with a total number of citations of more than 35 thousand

.