

Tariffs and Trade Wars

Prof. Dr. Carsten Eckel

LS (Seminar) Eckel

Wintersemester/winter semester 2025/26

In recent years, tariffs have regained prominence as key instruments of international trade policy and regulation. This seminar explores cutting-edge research that seeks to explain the resurgence of tariffs in global trade and to quantify their effects on firms and consumers. We will critically examine recent empirical and theoretical contributions that shed light on the motivations behind tariff implementation and their broader economic implications.
